ADMITTED TO CITIZENSHIP.—Robert Crowther, a native of England was admitted, in the circuit court, yesterday, to citizenship.

INCREASED SERVICE.—On and after today mail service on route No. 4,158 from Kansas City Court House to Spencer, Roane county, thirty-nine miles, is increased to two trips per week at pro rata prices.

CHANGE OF SITE.—The site of Hurricane Bridge postoffice, Putnam county, has been changed to Hurricane Station, and W. H. McCallister appointed postmaster. G. W. Grove succeeded by change of site.

DARK DAY.—Yesterday was a dark, dull day. Appearances indicated rain, but none fell hereabouts. In the evening the clouds passed away, and after dark the stars twinkled "like diamonds in the sky."

COMMENDABLE.—The tumble-down fence that has for a long time "enclosed" the Third Ward public school building, is being replaced by a new one. This is a much needed improvement, and we are glad it is being done in so substantial a manner.

NEEDED IMPROVEMENT.—The work of grading and paving the alley between John and Zane, and also the one between Zane and Clay streets, in East Wheeling, is being commendably pushed. The former alley is now being paved, and the work is being well done.

IN THE CITY.—Hon. J. J. Davis, of Clarksville, was in the city a few hours, yesterday. Mr. D. has been making a pretty thorough canvass in the southern counties of this District, in the interest of O'Connor and Adams. He reports Democrats who intend to vote for Greeley as being very scarce where he has been.

MARRIAGE LICENSES IN OCTOBER.—During the month which closed yesterday, there were forty-two marriage licenses issued from the Recorder's office of this county. In the corresponding month, in 1870 and 1871, the number was twenty-two—showing a handsome increase. Who says there is nothing in leap year?

SEVERELY HURT.—Wednesday evening, as Mrs. Stevens, the Librarian of the Public Library, was lighting the gas in the room the chair on which she stood turned over, throwing her against the store. She was very considerably hurt, so much so that she had to be taken to her room on Market street in a carriage. It will probably be two or three weeks before she can resume her duties in the Library. We were so informed, yesterday.

COMMITTED TO JAIL.—Only a few days ago, Mrs. McCormick, well known in Circuit and Police Court circles, was released from jail, and yesterday, we believe it was, she was found kindling a fire somewhere in a house which she insisted belonged to her, as we are informed. The occupants of the adjoining property not relishing such a proceeding instituted measures to have it stopped. Accordingly, a warrant was issued for her arrest, and she was taken before Esqr. Kammer, who, after investigating the case, required the accused to give security to keep the peace. This she was not able to do, and in default, was committed to jail.

ALL-SAINTS' AND ALL-SOULS.—This, the first day of November, is All-Hallow or All-Saints' Day, a prominent festival in the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal Churches. The festival takes its name from the conversion, in the seventeenth century, of the Pantheon at Rome into a Christian place of worship, and its dedication by Pope Boniface IV to the Virgin Mary and all the martyrs. The anniversary of this event was at first celebrated on the first of May, but the day was subsequently altered to the first of November, which was thereafter, under the designation of the feast of All-Saints, set apart as a general commemoration in their honor.

To-morrow, November 23, is All Souls' Day, a festival instituted by the Roman Catholic Church in behalf of the souls in purgatory, and is generally observed by persons of that religion in commemoration of the faithful departed. It was customary in former times in Catholic countries, on this day, for persons dressed in black to traverse the streets, ringing a dismal toned bell, calling upon the people to remember the souls in purgatory. In Europe it is still a day characterized by pious visits to the cemeteries and other burial places of the dead. This has always been particularly the case in Paris, where All Souls' Day, before the late war, was probably the only day of the year wholly dedicated to pious observances, when nearly all the population shut up their shops and repaired to Pere la Chaise and other cemeteries, to strew the resting places of the dead with flowers, and breathe a prayer for the repose of souls believed to be in purgatory.

GALA TIME.—Young America had a gala time last night. As many of our readers know to their sorrow this morning, it was Hallowe'en, and as it "comes but once a year" the boys determined to make the most of it. Shortly after dark troops of them took their line of march along the streets, and woe to all gates not securely fastened, bell knobs left out, piles of boxes on the side walks unwatched, and signs not firmly anchored. If there were any cabbage patches within the city limits, we guess they suffered, and it may be that other members of the vegetable kingdom, more handsome but not intrinsically as valuable, came in for their share of despoliation. As the little fellows rushed along on their errand of fun and mischief, their jubilant spirits gushed out in homely joke and boisterous laugh. We don't know that any positive loss was sustained by their youthful sport, but doubtless some inconvenience resulted therefrom, especially to those who this morning find gates removed and signs transferred. Perhaps, too, the owners of vehicles who left them standing on the street last night, will have to devote an hour or two to day in hunting for missing wheels, but that must all be charged up to the general account. "Boys will be boys," you know, and quite a large proportion of our readers were boys once themselves. They know how it is, and we hope they will exercise the largest charity towards "the young and rising generation."

NARROW ESCAPE.—Last Wednesday, Mollie Mericle, a young woman in the employ of the Central Glass Company, met with an accident which came near terminating her life. She was engaged in cementing the brass portion of the lamps used for burning kerosene oil to the glass, and the height of the table at which she was working being too great for her, she stood upon a bar extending from one of its supports to another. Parallel with this bar, but a few inches lower, stood a bench which was used by those who were engaged in the same business, but required only the (the) bench to bring them up to the requisite height. Stepping down from the bar, (with a lamp in her hands), supposing the bench to be in its usual place, she found it had been removed, and a severe fall was the result. She came down with great violence, crushing the lamp between her throat and the floor. A frightful gash was cut across the throat, exposing the windpipe and coming in dangerous proximity to one of the jugulars. The wound bled profusely, but the flow of blood was staunch by a surgeon who was called in. Subsequently she was removed to her residence in East Wheeling, and yesterday was as comfortable as could be expected from the nature and extent of her injuries.

CIRCUIT COURT.—The following is a synopsis of the business transacted in the Circuit Court, yesterday:

Case of L. S. Delaplain vs. Adolph Yocke, called and continued to a future day of the present term.

Hempfield Railroad Company vs. Central Glass Company, judgment in favor of plaintiff for $182.25, entered by consent of defendant.

Wheeling Glass Company vs. City of Wheeling—writ of unlawful detainer—argued by Messrs. Lamb and Wheat for plaintiff; Messrs. Allison and Jeffers for defendant. Writ quashed.

Messrs. Conrad Orr and George W. Robinson, who had been convicted of grand larceny and voluntary manslaughter, respectively, were brought into Court and formally sentenced to the penitentiary for two years, each, in accordance with the verdicts of the juries which tried them.

Adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

A FULL STOCK OF THE FINEST CONFECTIONERY ever brought to this city can be seen at Chas. R. Behler's, 111 Market St.

POLICE COURT.—We don't know anything as fluctuating as business in the police court. The grain market in Chicago and the prices of stocks in Wall street, are nowhere in comparison with it. Wednesday morning there were nine cases before His Honor; yesterday morning, not one. If we were satisfied that this great and rapid decline in business was the result of a moral reformation, we would be entirely reconciled to it; and yet we are gratified that such is the fact, let it be from whatever cause it may.
